10.	Read the given extracts and answer the questions briefly, for any two extracts, of the three, given	2x4=8
A
I	The speaker expresses strong regret and bitterness towards her past, suggesting that the suffering she endured was so intense that even painful situations later seemed preferable in comparison.	1
II	She gave it up because her earlier work caused emotional exhaustion and dissatisfaction. This reveals that she was mentally drained, disillusioned, and seeking stability and self-preservation at that stage of her life.	1
III	The sighing and rubbing of her nose suggest nostalgia mixed with pain, indicating that recalling the past stirs lingering emotional discomfort and weary reflection.	1
IV	The resolve shows a shift from passive endurance to active self-determination, reflecting her desire to redefine herself and take control of her present identity and future direction.	1
B
I	The phrase “wasteful war” highlights how human conflicts are destructive and indiscriminate, erasing physical achievements and cultural creations over time.	1
II	“The living record of your memory” suggests that poetry preserves memory more permanently than physical monuments, making it timeless and immune to decay.	1
III	The references emphasise the power of war to destroy material things, while contrasting it with poetry’s ability to grant immortality beyond physical violence.	1
IV	The poet conveys that human achievements like poetry outlast time and destruction, while wars and monuments eventually fade into oblivion.	1
C
I	Antony means that Caesar, though physically destroyed, was once the greatest and most honourable man, now reduced to a tragic remnant of former glory.	1
II	The line gives Caesar’s wounds a human voice, intensifying grief and evoking pity, thereby strengthening Antony’s emotional appeal to the crowd.	1
III	It reveals Antony’s awareness that Caesar’s murder will lead to chaos, revenge, and widespread civil war in Rome.	1
IV	The image shows a complete moral collapse, where violence becomes so normalised that even maternal instincts are destroyed by war.	1
11.	Answer any FIVE of the following SIX questions in 30-40 words each:	5x2=10
I	In Ozymandias, the ‘cold’ heart symbolises the king’s arrogance and lack of compassion. It reflects Ozymandias’s cruel pride and emotional emptiness, suggesting that his power was rooted in tyranny rather than humanity.	2

II	In A Shady Plot, humour arises through the ghost Helen's casual behaviour and the narrator's confusion. This light treatment of supernatural elements reduces fear and presents the clash between logic and imagination in a playful, entertaining manner.	2
III	In Mrs Packletide's Tiger, the villagers compromise their morals for money. They know the tiger is old and harmless, yet they help arrange an easy hunt by tying it up and staying silent about the truth. Their main concern is the reward Mrs Packletide promises. Thus for financial gain, they willingly become part of the deception, showing how money can overpower moral values.	2
IV	In Two Gentlemen of Verona, Nicola and Jacopo are young boys but shoulder adult responsibilities to fund their sister's treatment. This contrast highlights their maturity, selflessness, and the depth of their sacrifice at such a tender age.	2
V	In The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, the vast, icy Antarctic landscape and endless sea create a sense of desolation. The crew feels trapped in a hostile environment, reinforcing their physical isolation and spiritual helplessness.	2
VI	The Frog uses his status and experience to dominate the Nightingale, exploiting her insecurity and talent to control her, assert authority, and maintain power in the bog.	2
12.	Answer ANY ONE of the following two questions, in about 150 words	1x8=8
A. Content Points: • Silent sacrifice of Nicola and Jacopo for their sister • Coachman Ali's patience and unconditional love for his daughter • Love shown through endurance, not words • Selfless devotion without expectation of reward • Message: true love is sincere, loyal, and enduring
B. Content Points: • Greed and self-interest of Mrs Slater and Mrs Jordan • Mrs Packletide driven by jealousy and desire for social prestige • Hypocrisy and moral weakness exposed • Human values ignored for personal gain • Message: selfishness leads to moral downfall
