A	A Title — The Price of Connectivity	10x2=20

Modern digital connectivity destroys our capacity for deep attention and reflection by replacing cognitive stillness with constant distraction. This continuous external stimulation trains the brain to seek shallow gratification, making us efficient at skimming but incapable of deep reading, complex problem-solving, and emotional processing. To prevent technology from reshaping human psychology and erasing independent, original thought, we must consciously establish boundaries and intentionally disconnect from our devices.

B Title — Hustle Culture

Modern "bustle culture" glorifies relentless productivity, pressure to inonetize personal time, and constant self-optimization. This rpjyąjyţÿçjpąţjqjy of overwork views essential leisure as laziness, resulting in widespread burnout, anxiety, and alienation. By redefining human worth strictly through economic output, this ¡yiqç[şeţ strips life of its intrinsic value. To reclaim our physical and mental well-being, society must reject the harmful narrative that human dignity is tied solely to utility.
