Q. 2. Read the given passage carefully. (5 Marks)

The young man was taken aback. "But...but, that will be difficult..." he stammered.

"It will be difficult indeed, but do give it a try," the teacher suggested.

The young man went out. He returned half an hour later, exhausted. He had not been able to get hold of a single torn bit from the paper he had torn up just a while earlier!

"This is what happens with the spoken word," the teacher said to him. "Once you have spoken the words aloud, it is very difficult to take them back. Therefore, learn to think before you speak in anger."

Now answer the following questions.

Q. 4. Read the given passage carefully.

"They have but one escape route," whispered Holmes. "That is back through Mr Wilson's house. I hope that some men are waiting at Mr Wilson's door, Mr Jones ?"

"I have an inspector and two officers waiting at his door."

"Then we have stopped all the holes. Now we must be silent and wait."

We waited silently for more than an hour. It was pitch dark in the cellar. Then suddenly, a point of bright light appeared in the floor of the cellar, then a line, and a gash seemed to open, and a hand appeared. A broad stone turned over upon its side, and left a square hole. A boyish face emerged. The man looked about and came out of the hole. He had a companion with him, a man with very red hair. The pair was none other than Spaulding the assistant alias the criminal Clay and the red-headed Mr Duncan Ross! As soon as they climbed out of the hole, Sherlock Holmes sprang out and seized Clay by the collar.
